DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hom or Mnich et al in view of Dean et al.

Hom or Mnich et al discloses an acoustic panel having a solid back skin, acoustically permeable front skin, and a honeycomb cell structure. However, Hom or Mnich et al is silent on the ice protection system and the insulation element. However, Dean et al teach an ice protection system that has an acoustically permeable and electrically and thermally conductive structure and insulation elements are well known in the art.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to have used an ice protection system (being wire meshes and made out of metal, which can include steel) and the insulation element in Hom or Mnich et al's system as taught by Dean et al to protect the aircraft from ice. Please note that the acoustic panels can be used in any parts of the aircraft including the nacelle.

Claimd 10-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hom or Mnich et al's system as modified by Dean et al as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Kugelman or Volkner et al.

Hom or Mnich et al's system as modified by Dean et al discloses all claimed parts except for the parting strip and selectively or sequentially operating sections of the ice protection system. However, Kugelman or Volkner et al teaches that parting strips and selectively or sequentially operating sections of the ice protection systems are well known in the art.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to have used parting strips and selectively or sequentially operating sections of the ice protection system in Hom or Mnich et al's system as modified by Dean et al and as taught by Kugelman or Volkner et al to efficiently and effectively prevent ice.

Response to Arguments

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the motivation to combine is clear. One skilled in the art would want to protect the aircraft from the environment so that it will not crash. One of the protections is from the ice that accumulates on the aircraft. The motivation would be to prevent ice formation on the plane which could lead to disastrous results.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
